

From: Raymond
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 2:29am
Subject: Comment on about the MS settlement

Hello:

I work with schools and community centers in the LA area. Many schools and community centers would like to use Linux as there main educational Operating System. After watching the video of Dan Kegel at Linux Public Broadcasting Network I also conclude that Microsoft must not create barriers to prevent MS applications from running on Linux via the WINE project. If the DOJ would enforce this one condition the US software market would likly return to a competitive market again. Most importantly disadvantaged ethnic groups and poor schools would have the technological skills they need to compete in the job market. Please watch the video at www.lpbn.org to find out what the really bright tech people of this country are saying. The link is www.lpbn.org.

Sincerely,

Raymond Stedng